DETAILED ACTION

1. The enclosed detailed action is in response to the Amendment submitted on May 21, 2003.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

- 2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:
 - (a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.
- 3. Claims 1-29 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hayashi et al. (USPN: 6,341,239) in view of Earnshaw et al. (PGPUB: US 2003/0012212). Regarding claims, 1-3, 5, 7-9, 11, 13-15, 19-20, 22 and 27-29, Hayashi discloses a rewriting device (Figure 1, Reference 14) for rewriting data stored in a non-volatile memory (Figure 1, Reference 20) of a vehicle controller (Figure 1, Reference 2), wherein the rewriting device is capable of communicating with the vehicle controller (C 3, L 43-46; C 4, L 33-44). However, Hayashi does not disclose the rewriting device configured to determine that communication between the rewriting device and the vehicle controller is offline when no response is received from the vehicle controller within a first determination time; wherein when a deleting/writing operation of data is being performed, the rewriting device is configured to prohibit the determination of offline until a second determination time elapses, the second determination time being greater than the first determination time, wherein if no response is received from the vehicle controller within the second determination time, which is the time necessary to delete data stored in the memory/write data in the memory, it is determined that communication is offline. Earnshaw teaches the concept of determining that communication between two devices (transmitter/receiver) is offline (Page 3, Section [0029, lines 10-20]; Section [0030, lines 1-13] a condition which is preventing the receiver from responding/communicating) when no response is received from the receiver device within a first predetermined time period (ACK timer 20; Page 3, Section [0029, lines 10-20]; Section [0030, lines 1-13]); an wherein when an operation is being performed the transmitter is configured to prohibit determining that the receiver device is offline (Page 3, Section [0030, entire], Section [0031, lines 1-9] - the transmitter is prohibited in determining or identifying that the receiver device is offline by retransmitting the request and waiting a second time period) until a second determination time elapses (Panic timer, Page 3, Section [0030, entire], Section [0031, lines 1-9]), the second determination time being greater than the first determination time (Page 3, Section [0029, lines 11-20], Section [0030, lines 13-19] - the Panic timer is greater than the ACK timer; ACK timer expires or has a duration of A+D -T(1); Panic timer has a duration of A+D-T(2); wherein T(2) is less than T(1)), wherein if no response is received from the receiver within the second determination time, which is the time necessary to perform an operation, it is determined that communication is offline [communication is not taking place] (Page 3, Section [0031, lines 7-9]). This feature taught by Earnshaw provides an efficient and reliable means of communicating between two devices by ensuring that the devices receive the information in which it is designed to receive and by identifying when the devices have not received the information in which it is to receive. Hayashi discloses communicating between two devices; however, Hayashi does not provide any means for ensuring efficient and reliable data communication. Hence, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to use Earnshaw's teachings in the system taught by Hayashi for the desirable purpose of efficiency and reliability.

Regarding claims 4, 10, 16-17, 21 and 23-26, the system taught by Hayashi and Earnshaw discloses acquiring an operation time prior to an operation and to set the second determination time to the operation time (Earnshaw – Page 3, Section [0030], lines 14-23, the operation time is acquired from A+D-T(2)); wherein when the operation is being performed, the determination of offline is prohibited until the second determination time that is set according to the operation time elapses (Earnshaw - Page 3, Section [0030, entire], Section [0031, lines 1-9] - the transmitter is prohibited in determining or identifying that the receiver device is offline by retransmitting the request and waiting a second time period).

Regarding claims 6, 12, and 18, the system taught Hayashi and Earnshaw discloses an operation time is calculated based on an estimate of how long it should take the device to perform the desired operation (Earnshaw – Page 3, Section [0030, lines 14-19) and thus if the operation is a memory operation it is evident that the estimated time required to perform the operation would consider the size of the data and the specification of the memory.

Response to Arguments

4. Applicant's arguments with respect to the claims have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's 5. disclosure.

Luzzi – USPN: 6321,263 – determining device is offline/busy.

Clausing – USPN: 4,091,448 - determining device is offline/busy.
